MUNICIPALITY OF CULTURE – MACHICO 2011

In July 1419 João Gonçalves Zarco and Tristão “of the islands” arrived at the beautiful beach of Machico, opening the glorious and epic adventure of the Portuguese discoveries. The first Mass celebrated in Madeira by Franciscan priests, was held in this villa, on July 2nd - the day of Santa Isabel, who have accompanied the expedition as an appreciation and joy of its discovery.

Many hypotheses have been raised on the origin of the name of Machico. The best known, although no less controversy, is the romantic legend of the two English lovers, Robert Machin and Anne d’Arfet. The name of this town seems to follow the corruption of the word Machin.

On May 8th of 1440 the Prince D. Henrique donates to Tristão Vaz Teixeira and to his descendants the command of Machico (from Ponta da Oliveira, in Canico, to the Ponta de S. Lourenço, and from here to Porto Moniz). This way, Machico becomes the first post of command in the archipelago of Madeira.

After Santa Cruz, the city of Machico welcomes the Municipality of Culture 2011, an opportunity for the council, as in previous ones, to become better known, in cultural terms, by undertaking a series of initiatives that highlight traditions, arts, local culture and heritage.

MADEIRA CLASSICAL ORCHESTRA

[ORQUESTRA
Clássica da
Madeira]

The Madeira Classical Orchestra (MCO) opens the month of February with a concert in its "brand new venue" at Madeira Technopolo - a Sala Ursa Maior. After a period away from the usual programming, the MCO opened its season 2010/2011, last December in a concert with the Portuguese guitar player Pedro

Jóia. It was a world première of a piece in three movements - «Evocação do Fado Menor». The concert also marked the début of the MCO new official venue, a space that properly suits its concerts' performance with a unique feature in the Autonomous Region of Madeira, bandshell (a venue typically used by bands and orchestras), allowing audience and performers to largely enjoy each concert.

For this month the MCO presents nine concerts, divided in three concert venues, the Electricity Museum - Casa da Luz, Funchal City Hall and the CS Madeira Hotel.
